

Attorneys are of vital importance to the survival of our republic and, together with judges, have been the stewards of our democratic ideals and the rule of law for centuries – from the founding of the nation. The

Those who are considering a career in law must recognize this proud history and ongoing commitment – and that as a result, law does not lend itself to a 9-5 schedule. Nor is law just a job. It is a profession and vocation.

From Pre-Law Advisors

data is not always clear, and different numbers can and should be examined for more information. For example, if one looks at the percentage of those in the class of 2017

Nevertheless, competition for jobs over the next 10 years is expected to be strong because more students graduate from law school each year than there are jobs available.”¹³

As mentioned by the ABA's article, despite any so-called "Trump Bump"¹⁷ in the market for attorneys, there are those in the field who state that the job market for entry-level lawyers is 25 percent smaller than it was 10 years ago, and we are in the or co-majoring in, or at least minoring in, accounting, finance, computers or a STEM subject. Not only will this likely enhance your law school application, but, perhaps more important, it will likely give you a leg up in the increasingly competitive legal job market. And, if you through a master's program while in law school. So, if you are interested in public health, consider a J.D./MPH program. If international affairs is where your ultimate career ambitions lie, consider a J.D./M.A. in International Relations. From Biotech to Human Resources, Data in response to the question: "how will I know?" "Take a year, or two, off between undergraduate school and law school." Obtain a master's degree in a field of interest to you – but, as with a law degree, make sure the master's is in a field that will contribute to professional achieve-you are seriously considering attending, and to which you believe you have a strong chance of getting accepted. Most law schools are open to allowing prospective students to sit in on classes; some even have formal programs for prospective students to visit their campus, visit classes and would likely still have to use a valid and reliable test of some kind).³⁰ However, the proposal was withdrawn prior to a debate or vote in the ABA House of Delegates at its Annual Meeting in Chicago on August 6-7, 2018. Instead, the House of Delegates considered and passed

CONCLUSION

We have attempted in this relatively short space to provide

25. See LSAC website, at <https://www.lsac.org/jd/applying-to-law-school/cas>.

26. See ABA's Law School Accreditation Process, Sept. 2016, https://www.americanbar.org/content/dam/aba/publications/misc/legal_education/2016_accreditation_

SURETY BOND SPECIALISTS

www.LevineCompany.com